"The Squexie says that between plus numbers and minus numbers lies a point of neutrality called 'nought' or 'zero.' This point exists also in matter, though it is rare, and it is called 'noggox.' It can act as a binding agent between anti and ordinary matter."

"It depends," she said. "The Black Sun's orbits are so irregular that my father's astronomers cannot compute them, for they are controlled by a magician in a far country."

There was no way of getting to the ghastly castle. The island on which it stood was surrounded with a sort of oily water that filled the crater to its lip. There was no bridge.

SPOOK PRESS

THE VIOLET LENS is a monochromatic collage contemplation document project that examines the block sinister of black magic, terrorism, serial-killing and Deep State conspiracies. It is made in Great Britain and has been purposefully designed into a lo-fi freedom "silhouette" format in full praise of photocopiers and the innovative samizdat ethic, hence also its distribution via the free PDF strategy.

The automata with no name reproduced above was made after the image-pages were completed. It obviously fits, and in an agreeable way, in that sometimes the levitations are done by invisible beings lifting the target, and there is definite telepathic contact during human-human telephone calls.

The reason you can see or through THE VIOLET LENS is at sweet sixteen some of us are noticed, then marked out for targeting, to gather intelligence on what we are and doing and for possible recruitment. Forehead glow, crosses on the palm, although spirit alcohol + tattoo guns don't always go according to plan (messed). Those who pass the triune test are lifted by the holographic helicopters, aka or maybe UFOs, and after top-up trickle and further shock-and-awe programming are thrust as a hunting youth into the front rank of dark allure psychological dislocation in the crucible of alienation/mutation.

After work "Arcadia" mentioned, raincoat melted. Scot-free power-sex-drugs transgressive experiences offered and demonstrated, TV chef chopped up. DRAC Radar illuminating back-scatter/front-clutter via countryside WIFI demonic hot-spot portals. The streets were large fragments of broken glass travelling at 35mph or the setting fire to a cloud of custard powder (that explodes like napalm) or a crowded elevator when the braking system fails, the wells filling up with filled up thought debris. No-one answers the questions or asks the right ones. Born to die. The world is cackling at you, a mixed bag of fools.

It is like a play game for the malicious master manipulator trickery in smoke and mirror, quicksand and quicklime, chemical claws in. They rub your engine, traffick people, glamorise degeneracy and make money from it. Gore gross creepy stock delivered, the same old new technology stuff, lying to the liars, aka doom-mood swings and inverted-cross roundabouts; higher realms barred because of your reactions; shitting on a sausage. Red tape, empty rooms, the cosmic horror of the secret service society. Bad gas, effluent, plastic, condoms destroying Planet E as crimson eyes stare through the derelict grain hatch. No bees no u or mees.

Those who protest or try to escape are served parental alienation, job/social ostracism: a living death, or a real one. Facial recognition and mind ignorance devices twisting the vine, an electronic dog on your back. The psychic rebellion ones get stomped by the punitive false psychiatry (billion-dollar soft-cop mafia industry) with Ground Zero eyes. Paranoid schizophrenia/freakout psychosis whatever is pinned to the door, the scary voices and other symptoms just side-effects of the drugs they force you to take, wanking over your relapses. Lobotomy replaced by Thorazine and co., no motivation just sleeping, staring at the wall all day or walking weird through dock gloop with syrup-ear hearing or head totally empty so no normal conversation, slurred and drooling, dragging your feet behind until suicidal from the emptiness; pointless moments stretching life ahead and pervert voyeuristic torture, killing yourself with your worst enemy everyday.

But refuse to knuckle under as a stick in the mud or dancing bear because the Stars War is necessary (due to its instigators) and so has to be fought. Imperfect beings cannot exist in the realm of perfect beings. Force of law truth drugs and lie detector tests for all people in power positions when they say or do anything is the only way to stop corruption by these suited sharks and boneless clockfuckers. Every single worker of treachery or treason sacked and jailed immediately in the waste places. That, or erase the whole system and interaction, to be content with weird visuals.

Spooked dogs leap to their deaths from haunted bridge

Michael Glackin

A Victorian bridge has been dubbed "Rovers' leap" after more than 600 dogs jumped from it on to rocky ground almost 60ft below.

In the past 70 years, between 50 and 100 dogs have died after leaping off Overtoun Bridge in the Scottish village of Milton, West Dunbartonshire. The phenomenon has left pet owners and locals baffled.

Canine behaviour experts say that dogs are incapable of having suicidal thoughts.

Owners whose dogs have jumped report them leaping suddenly at exactly the same spot, between two parapets on one side of the ornate granite bridge. The dogs also tended to jump off the ornate bridge on clear warm days. All the dogs that jumped to their deaths were long-nosed breeds, such as retrievers or labradors.

Some believe that the bridge is haunted. Paul Owens, a religion and philosophy teacher who grew up near said: "When you get down to a dog's level, the solid granite of the bridge's 18in thick walls obscures their vision and blocks out all sound. As a result, the one sense not obscured, that of smell, goes into overdrive."

Last year, Alice Troughton, a nurse at Dunfermline, said she had seen a dog jump off the bridge. "The dog was running and was trapped in the gap between the parapets. I caught it yesterday. The dog was very nervous."

that lingers in this location."

More mundanely, some believe that the odour from male minks could be luring the dogs to their deaths.

David Sands, a canine psychologist,

A sign now warns owners to keep their dogs on leads.

Rare sheep 'sacrificed to Satan' on Dartmoor

A farmer has claimed that one of her rare-breed sheep was slaughtered in a satanic ritual to mark the summer solstice.

The woman, who did not want to be named for fear of reprisals, discovered the whiteface Dartmoor ewe in a field on Sunday, with one ear and a back leg hacked off and the jugular vein slashed. Her lamb was wandering nearby. The corpse had been dragged around to leave a bloody spiral on the grass in the Teign Valley, Devon. Two months ago the same farmer found the severed leg of a lamb on the night of a full moon. She said: "We get enough hassle with dogs worrying sheep; we don't need devil worshippers as well."

There have been rumours in the past of devil worship on Dartmoor. In 2013 a family claimed that a secret cult was sacrificing livestock. Maxine Beesley said that four ducks and two goats had been skinned and beheaded and a horse attacked. The same year, police appealed for information after two horses were found with knife wounds.

A horse was found dead in 2013 on St Winebald Day, which marks a day of sacrifice, while in 2006 the bodies of about 100 sheep were found arranged in a satanic star shape.

Police have recorded the latest case as "inflicting unnecessary suffering on an animal" but would not speculate on whether it was a ritual killing.

Chester Imp ready for his first close-up in centuries

A tiny devil perched high above Chester Cathedral's nave has been caught on camera by a drone. A cathedral spokesman said that the Chester Imp was known about but the footage, shot for a city history trail, was the first close-up of it. The cathedral was originally an abbey, on which building began in 1092. Legend has it that a priest who was overseeing the work was startled by Satan staring through a window. He sent up a stonemason to carve a devil in chains and frighten him away. The drones are said to have filmed areas not seen for hundreds of years.

Things began to improve when I read a long paper describing the success of ENGULF against the Egyptians, and the advances we had made since then on the radio illumination of cipher noises and what could be achieved aurally, using our new range of microphones. I went on

The last of Morgan's four programs was the development of a number of special X-ray methods for use against advanced combination safes. These were proving more than a match, even for Leslie Jagger, but the use of Morgan's X-ray device enabled the combination to be read off from outside, and gave MI5 potential access to every safe in Britain.

Ever since the beginning of LIONSBEARD, all Watcher communications were recorded by MI5 and retained, so I organized a test. I by Lonsdale. There were signal plants for three separate types of transmissions from Moscow, secret-writing material, and facilities to make microdots using chromic acid and Sellotape. Mrs. Kroger had even day we located the transmitter. It was hidden in a cavity under the kitchen floor, along with cameras and other radio equipment. Everything was carefully concealed in moisture-resistant sealed packages, and the whole system had obviously been designed to be stored for a considerable length of time.

Back at Leconfield House I printed out the tape recordings of the local oscillator on a sonagram. The sound waves modulated with a small mains ripple. But the wave form was not at mains frequency. It was similar to that produced by battery power packs used in cars and brellas which folded out to make a receiver and transmitter dish. We set SATYR up in an MI5 flat on South Audley Street with the umbrellas in Hollis' office. The test worked perfectly. We heard everything from test speech to the turn of the key in the door.

"Wonderful, Peter," Hollis kept on saying, as we listened to the test. "It's black magic."

Evelyn McBarnet was a strange woman, with a large birthmark running down one side of her face. Like a hothouse plant, she lived all her life in the enclosed space of the office, and had no perceptible existence outside.

"Are you a Freemason?" she asked me almost as soon as I joined her in her office.

"No," I replied, "and I don't approve of it."

"I didn't think you looked like one, but you'd better join if you want to be a success in this place," she told me darkly.
